

OAS Crisis Committee

OAS objectives: Preserving Democracy Through Negotiation, Discussion, and strategic intervention.

This debate will take place present day Mexico (2016). Delegates will be addressing the challenges Mexico is facing from the perspective of an OAS Ambassador. This means that their goal is to restore democracy in Mexico by advising the Mexican government on urgent matters. Chairs will guide the flow of the debate to keep delegates within the topic and remind them to address certain aspects of the issue which have not been before. Still, delegates will lead the discussion. In this committee the delegates will not be drafting full resolutions. They will draft directives designed to focus on specific aspects of the challenges the Mexican government is facing. Following an OAS protocol, the committee will run on a Perpetual Moderated Caucus (unmoderated). Meaning that delegates will choose the aspects of the crisis that they would like to debate about. They will then draft directives to address this problems in the order they choose.

The main goal of this committee is to find, not only short term responses to all the political, educational, social and economical problems, but to also come up with long term effective resolutions.
